Day One

Wednesday 11 June 2025

Session	Time	Topic	Presenter
Session 5	1.30 pm CPD 1 hour	CPD Presentation Balancing Act: Enhancing Individual Well-being Through Effective Work-Life Balance Summary: In our increasingly demanding professional landscape, maintaining a healthy work-life balance is essential for individual well-being. This presentation explores the critical relationship between work-life balance and personal wellbeing. We will examine how legal frameworks and regulations, such as the right to disconnect, impact what constitutes work-life balance. Attendees will learn practical strategies to achieve a better balance. We will also discuss when and how to seek support, whether from employers, colleagues, or mental health professionals. Through real-life examples, legal insights, and actionable strategies, this presentation aims to equip individuals with the tools they need to thrive both professionally and personally. Session 6	2.30 pm	Manager Codes of Conduct The issue of body corporate manager regulation and conduct has occupied significant media and public attention in recent times. This session will focus on legislative Codes of Conduct for managers in Queensland, ACT, and New Zealand. Taking a comparative approach, it will examine what these Codes contain, their relationship to other legal duties, and whether they are enforceable or just aspirational.	Thomas Gibbons, Gibbons Law, NZ Susan Proctor Proctor Legal, ACT
	3.30 pm	Afternoon Tea Break
Session 7	3.50 pm	Dealing with leasehold interests in strata property: Comparing NSW and Singapore Any estate of land may be leased. This creates a term held by the leasees or leaseholders, and a reversion held by the person holding the fee simple. Whereas strata or apartment living may be thought of as both a conceptual and spatial form of subdivision, leasehold estates are temporal subdivisions which create ownership for both the 'now' and the 'later'. Dealing with leasehold interests in strata property therefore creates additional layers of complexity because of the need to account for the lessees as well as the reversioner. This is both an economic exercise in valuation as well as a proprietary one in relation to land use control. Using NSW and Singapore as the relevant jurisdictions, this paper considers what additional issues, whether in terms of improvements to the property, compulsory purchase or strata collective sales, arise when the interest in strata property is leasehold rather than fee simple.	Associate Professor Edward TI SNG
Session 8	4.30 pm	Building Management Committee's Identity Crisis: Can we fix it, and how? The paper will look at the legal status of building management committees (BMCs) in New South Wales. It will focus on what a BMC is in New South Wales, the type of problems resulting from a BMC's lack of legal status (specifically in terms of its ability to recover debts from members and issues that arise for creditors), and the solutions that could give BMCs in New South Wales not only legal status but resolve resulting issues experienced by BMCs and creditors alike.	Nancy Torry Bugden Allen Group Legal, NSW

Day Three

Friday 13 June 2025

Session	Time	Topic	Presenter
Session 19	1.30 pm	Virtual Presentation Embedded Network and other Sustainability Contracts as Potential Breaches of Fiduciary Duty Developer negotiated contracts have been a consistent feature of strata development for decades, and have equally consistently been the subject of lot owner complaint. Developer negotiated contracts take advantage of lot owners' statutory obligations to pay levies for infrastructure and services, which developers recognise as an ongoing income stream that they or their associates can exploit. However, developer negotiated contracts can also relate to infrastructure and services that flow from good engineering or planning, and/or have been required by development consent. This will increasingly be the case in relation to sustainability infrastructure designed to help us collectively reach net zero. This presentation will consider the ways in which developer negotiated contracts can avoid breaching potential fiduciary duties developers owe bodies corporate.	Professor Cathy Sherry Macquarie University, NSW Professor Matthew Conaglen Equity and Trusts, University of Sydney Law School
Session 20	2.10 pm	Strata/Remedial Construction Reform Update <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Update as to ongoing strata-remedial consultation with Government relating to compliance with the DBP Act & associated reform, insurance, planning, performance solutions• Emerging case law Part 4: Statutory Duty of Care• Is the reform working? What are we seeing?• Future reform impacting remedial works in existing strata buildings• Tips for guidance for strata managers/owners corporations• How can we educate consumers buying into strata?	Helen Kowal Swaab, NSW
Session 21	2.50 pm	The Perils of Progressive Development – Why was a Queensland developer fined $125,000 for making a development application? On 31 January 2025 the Queensland Court of Appeal handed down its decision in Corella Rd Dev Pty Ltd v Body Corporate for Gympie Pines Fairway Villas CTS 36509 [2025] QCA 3. The developer, Corella Rd, is now liable to pay a fine of $125,000, half of which must be paid to the Body Corporate, plus Magistrates Court costs of over $115,000 and costs in the Court of Appeal proceedings. Why? Because Corella Rd had failed to give the Body Corporate proper written notice, in advance, of the developer's intentions to apply to the local government for a development approval which, if given, would change the final stages of the development. This decision is the first judicial exploration of important provisions introduced in 2003, to both provide better consumer protection and to give developers certainty about their rights, in staged subdivisions. The Court of Appeal proceedings came at the end of the Body Corporate's successful private prosecution of the developer in the Magistrate's Court, and successful defence of the developer's appeal to the District Court. Accordingly, this session not only deals with the rationale and key findings of the Court of Appeal, it also offers some practical insights into the private prosecution process and the appeals processes which followed.	Michael Kleinschmidt Bugden Allen Group Legal, QLD
	3.15 pm	Conference concludes with afternoon tea
